Biography

Krista deBoer is a Senior Associate at Bick Law. Krista represents clients in all phases of environmental and business litigation, enforcement defense, regulatory compliance, and corporate transactional matters. She has worked with clients from a variety of sectors including aerospace and defense, food and beverage, healthcare, residential development, energy, transportation, and retail. She also represents public sector entities, including port districts and irrigation districts. Krista's practice focuses on CERCLA allocation and cost recovery, NRD assessment, contaminated site cleanup, hazardous materials and hazardous waste compliance, CEQA, Endangered Species Act litigation, and environmental torts.

In addition to representing clients, Krista is a mediator specializing in environmental, education, and business disputes. She has taught negotiation, advanced negotiation, and difficult conversations seminars to corporate, public, and nonprofit organizations in the U.S. and abroad, including through the Harvard Negotiation Institute. She also teaches negotiation to law students as an Adjunct Professor at Georgetown Law School.

Prior to joining Bick Law, Krista was a litigation associate at Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher where she was a member of Gibson's General Litigation and Mass Tort & Environmental practice groups.

While in law school, Krista was on the teaching teams for the Harvard Law School negotiation course and Harvard Negotiation Institute executive education program, and she did consulting work through the Harvard Negotiation and Mediation Clinical Program. She served as the president and founding member of the Harvard Food Law Society, was an editor of the Harvard Environmental Law Review, and was a Lecturer on Law at Boston College.
